A Social Stranger

By Amanda Tomik
One day, Jane went onto her social media page to see if anyone had liked the picture she shared.
One day, Jane went onto her social media page to see if anyone had liked the picture she shared.
While she was responding to one of her friend's comments, a chat box appeared.

She did not recognize the person's name or face. They had no friends in common, and he lived very far away.

Although she never met him before, the stranger appeared to be friendly.
While she was responding to one of her friend's comments, a chat box appeared. She did not recognize the person's name or face. They had no friends in common, and he lived very far away. Although she never met him before, the stranger appeared to be friendly.

But Jane was unsure if she should reply back or not.
Jane got really nervous about the stranger messaging her.
She called her mom over to the computer and asked what she should do.
Jane's mom did not recognize the stranger either. She then showed Jane how to block people on the Internet to avoid any unwanted conversations from strangers like that man.
Jane's mom did not recognize the stranger either. She then showed Jane how to block people on the Internet to avoid any unwanted conversations from strangers like that man.
"You were very smart not to talk to that stranger," Jane's mom said. "It can be very dangerous talking to people you don't know."
"It's like talking to strangers in real life: you need to be careful with whom you interact with."
"Thanks mom," Jane said. "Next time something like this happens, I will know to ignore the conversation and to block the person."
“Thanks mom,” Jane said. “Next time something like this happens, I will know to ignore the conversation and to block the person.”